Not a voice in opposition was heard when William F. Deegan, first vice commander of the New York State Legion and commander of the Bronx County shapter, called for a vote on the bonus resolution which was first in the order of four resolutions offered in behalf of ex-service men of the state. There was a smashing chorus of "ayes," which, it was declared, left no doubt that Bronx County legionnaires were determined to "fight it out" and obtain the compensation which the Court of Appeals on Wednesday held unconstitutional.

tutional.

The vote followed a ten-minute ovation to Major Deegan, chairman of the convention, as a candidate for the leadership of the New York State Department of the Legion.

The adoption of the bonus resolution proceeded in an orderly manner, as part of the general business before the convention.

Would Amend Constitution
The resolution said that "if no other feasible way can be found to legally achieve the end sought by this legialation, we favor a constitutional amendment which will validate the payment of the bonus by the State of New Tork to all honorably discharged exservice men who served in the World War, and who were residents of the state at the time they entered the service of the United States government."

ment."

Major Deegan announced that State Commander Charles H. Blakeslee had just called a meeting of the state executive committee to be held at Albany Wednesday night to take definite action on the bonus. This followed developments during the day which point to a determined fight on behalf of the bonus. These were:

The statement by Adjutant General J. Leslie Kincaid, chairman of the bonus commission, that he was strongly in favor of a new law in the form of a constitutional amendment which would give wounded and disabled soldiers special compensation and under whose provisions "every veteran who was a resident of the State of New York at the time of his entry into the service would be made to profit."

The prediction was made by H. Edmund Machoid, Speaker of the Assembiy, that "the next Legislature will undoubtedly find some means of making these payments."

Many Members in Need

"Many of the service men have been led to believe they would be benefited under this law and are in actual need. Economic conditions have thrown thousands of service men out of employment in New York State. The average service man never had the benefit of the high wages caused by war conditions, and consequently has not been able to prepare himself financially for this present period of depression.

"Without any criticism of the logal reasoning involved in the decision, the American Legion will stand united on the fairness of the underlying idea of this bonus legislation, and in taking that stand it is confident that it has the united support of the people of the state."

Besides the bonus resolution the

Besides the bonus resolution the Bronx County chapter adopted a resolution calling upon Congress, through the state and national departments of the American Legion, to make an immediate and thorough investigation of the "serious charge that while the United States government is paying to the State of New York the sum of $2 a day for the care and maintenance of our mentally disabled comrades confined in state institutions, the latter is expending only the sum of $1.10

The statement in the complaint that the Famous Players Corporation controlled one-third of the picture houses in the country, the secretary-treasurer regarded as "ridiculous." He declared that the Real Art Corporation, which the complaint says was "held out to the trade to be wholly independent." had never been represented as such, because "everyone knows and will tell you that Realart is one of our affiliations." Regarding the extent of the corporation's foreign holdings and control, said to include more than eight countries with a $3,000,000 corporation in India, the official said that "only a small fraction" of that complaint was well-disposed in the cast, and he acted the character and he spoke the lines with an engaging splendor. His elequence had none of the infallible accuracy of the pianola, but it rose and fell, with admirably melodious hesitations and wavers, now languid, now tempestuous, and what is of equal importance, it was always intelligible. "Swords" is something that Mr. Howard may be proud to have composed; that Mr. Pemberton may be proud to have produced, and that Miss Eames and Mr. Ruben may, be glad to have acted, even if it doesn't quite solve the mystery of popularity in the theater. The new National, it should be added, is a dignified, quiet and commedicus there, full of comforts and conveniences.
